WHAT BEAT TAWNEY

A progressive sentiment in the First District of Minnesota which resulted in a revolt against Aldrichism and Cannonism. The things which contributed to this are as follows:

The personality of Sydney Anderson and his strong personal campaign.

President Taft's Winona speech. The known hostility of Tawney to Theodore Roosevelt.

An open letter in opposition to Tawney written by Senator Robert M. La Follette.

An open letter in opposition to Tawney written by Senator A. B. Cummins.

Speeches throughout the district by Gifford Pinchot, Francis J. Heney, Tom Morris, Otto Bosshard, C. H. Schweizer, Herman L. Ekern and James T. Manahan.

Exposures of Tawney's record occurring in La Follette's Magazine, Collier's Weekly and other public journals.

Speeches Delivered Against Tawney by "Carpet-baggers"

Francis J. Heney, Austin, Sept. 10, Rochester, Sept. 17.

Gifford Pinchot, Rochester, Sept. 5.

H. L. Ekern, Plainview, Sept. 6, Chatfield, Sept. 17.

James T. Manahan, Delivered speeches in all the larger cities of Dodge, Steele, Wadena, Freeborn and Olmstead counties.

C. H. Schweizer, Hokah, Sept. 16.

Tom Morris, Owatonna, Sept. 17, Rochester, Sept. 17.

Otto Bosshard, Winona (three speeches) Sept. 13.

Sept. 19, hundred mile auto tour with Anderson covering Fillmore county. Half hour stops in every village and formal meetings at Whalen, Prosper, Amherst, Mabel and Preston.

James A. Frear, Secy. of State, Rochester.

Political history records no more interesting story than that of the defeat for renomination of Congressman "Jim" Tawney in the First District of Minnesota yesterday. The successful fight of Sydney Anderson of Lanesboro to wrench the district from the Cannonized standpatter was spectacular in its aggression and method.

Tawney is beaten by anywhere from 2,500 to 4,000 votes in a district where four years ago he had no opposition, and which he carried two years ago against ex-Senator Knatvold of Albert Lea, a progressive republican, by 2,967.

Many things contributed to the defeat of Tawney, whose intrenchments had been considered impregnable. He had built up about him that regarded as the most powerful congressional political machine in the United States, excepting only that of Joseph G. Cannon himself. A every township and village there are his appointees, in every precinct there were his henchmen. Out of sixty newspapers in the district fifty five would tell the truth about him, for patronage had bought them. He was afraid to oppose Tawney, for to his constituents he was something awe inspiring in his power.

Anderson Comes Out

On August 1 Sydney Anderson led his nomination papers, and he once began a precinct to pre-empt campaign. Mr. Anderson is a young man, without much political experience, but he is honest, square

Has anybody here seen Tawney? Which way did Tawney run? The only one who's passed here is Sydney Anderson! I want to find "Jim" Tawney This evening, if I can; I want to ask him if it's true That Tawney "also ran."

jawed and intelligent. He is also modest. There had been a determined effort to get some more experienced and older man into the race against Tawney, but all who were approached declined, regarding the defeat of the mighty "Jim" as impossible. It was only after older men had balked at the prospect, and when the progressives were hard put for a candidate that Sydney Anderson put aside his diffidence and ceased to wait upon those whom he deemed more eligible than himself.

By Word of Mouth

On August 10, ten days after the announcement of Sydney Anderson's candidacy, Congressman "Jim" Tawney filed his papers. Anderson had not waited for him. From the hour of his filing he had been busy. He knew that the newspapers of the district would not help him. He knew he would have to rely largely upon the La Crosse Tribune for publicity, so far as the public prints were concerned. So he set about the great task of going into every township and precinct in the district and telling, by word of mouth, the truth about "Jim" Tawney.

Anderson a Quick Debater

Tawney viewed Anderson's early activities without alarm. He adopted an attitude of lofty disdain, and planned to float back into office upon the wings of patronage. Who owned this blooming district, if not "Jim" Tawney? To an acquaintance he declared that he "would not be beaten by a popgun."

But he changed his mind, shortly. The supposedly guileless youth began making headway. He was a fighter. More, he was a long headed debater. At Albert Lea a Tawney satellite handed him a list of questions to which answers were demanded. He was to begin speaking in five minutes. The questions were cleverly framed to trap even a wary politician. There were ten of them. Anderson answered them off hand, without a chance to study them, and ten times in ten answers he made capital for himself and brought confusion on the Tawney crowd.

"Jim" Takes Fright

Evidently this boy was no baby, and "Jim" Tawney dropped the lofty sphinxism of his program and got busy like a frightened ward heeler. He scolded his henchmen, he abused Anderson. He scrambled about in frantic endeavor to stem the tide of popular opinion. He became so fierce that men who opposed him dared not show their hands. Anderson could not get men to act as chairmen of his meetings, although the vote shows most of them were for him. Each wheel of the machine, in each village and town, was turning constantly. The eyes of the straw-bosses were on the timid voters. Paralyzed and dumb, it seemed, was the voice of the people.

Roosevelt Sends Help

But Anderson didn't care. He kept on fighting. He was soon cheered by the coming of Gifford Pinchot and Francis J. Heney, sent by Col. Roosevelt to make each one speech against Tawney. They made a great impression.

Tribune Takes a Hand

The Tribune had analyzed the situation, and knew well the need of Anderson. It was more speakers. If he could get speakers enough to tell all the progressive republicans the truth about Tawney, he would win, for it was made evident that they were an independent and intelligent public, seeking the light that had been denied them by a complete censorship of their press. So the Tribune urged Wisconsin progressives to enter the fight against Tawney. This paper kept up agitation upon this subject, showing the importance of Tawney's defeat to the progressive cause, and contending that with enough speakers it could be done.

Our Progressives Act

The progressive republican leaders of Wisconsin rose nobly to the occasion. Senator La Follette was ill and could not go, but he sent Mr. Anderson a strong letter that was used with powerful effect in the latter's literature. Senator Cummins of Iowa, did the same, and this contributed to the general education and stiffened the backbones of the less sturdy of the Minnesota progressives. James T. Manahan, of St. Paul, entered the lists for Anderson. Senator Tom Morris, republican candidate for lieutenant governor; Otto Bosshard, candidate from this district for state senator; Charles H. Schweizer, law partner of Assemblyman J. E. McConnell, and Herman Ekern, republican candidate for insurance commissioner, all leading Wisconsin progressives and able speakers, invaded the Tawney district and told the truth about "Jim" Tawney. With Anderson they campaigned with relentless energy, and their work was counted in hundreds of votes.

Home People Loyal

One of the fine things about Sydney Anderson's campaign was the loyalty of his fellow citizens at Lanesboro. Tawney gangsters were maintaining a veritable reign of terror in some localities, and timid citizens were fearful of reprisals. It was not a guess that, unattended, he could not have held meetings in many places without interruption, or worse. To these towns Lanesboro people went in crowds to stand by their young leader, and they made good. The Lanesboro band, an aggregation of patriots as well as musicians, went with him from town to town, paying their own expenses and helping to "whoop it up" for Anderson.

To describe all the meetings would be impossible. Suffice it to say that in almost every case the audience was afraid to cheer at the opening, but as fearless orators proceeded, their enthusiasm got the better of their discretion, and they ended by giving vent to wild outbursts of applause.

A Great Meeting

What was in many particulars one of the most remarkable political meetings in the history of the progressive movement was that held at Preston Monday night. The speakers were Candidate Anderson, Senator Tom Morris and Otto Bosshard. Preston is a Tawney stronghold, the home of Sam Langum, by gift of

BIG RATIFICATION OF S. ANDERSON

ANDERSON'S BIG MAJORITIES

Figures Show He Defeated Tawney in All Counties Except Two, which He Conceded

TAWNEY'S STATEMENT

Congressman James A. Tawney in a statement issued at his home in Winona today says the democrats entering the primary, which is permissible under the Minnesota law, caused his defeat. He cites in three counties where there were 7,000 democratic votes two years ago there were only 150 cast yesterday.

LANESBORO, Minn., Sept. 21.—(Special).—No one slept in Lanesboro last night. At 4 o'clock this morning when it became certain Sydney Anderson had defeated James A. Tawney for the nomination, the Lanesboro band which has supported Anderson during his campaign without charge, began to whoop things up, and there was a continuous band concert from 4 o'clock until 9 o'clock this morning.

Anderson's friends are highly elated over his victory and attribute much of the credit to the assistance rendered by Wisconsin progressive influences.

There will be a big ratification meeting here in Lanesboro Friday afternoon, at which the Wisconsin progressives who aided, and all others who assisted Anderson will be the guests of honor. It is to be a big affair and all friends of Anderson are invited to be on hand and join in the justification.

The Comparative Vote

Anderson carried all counties excepting Wabasha and Winona. These he conceded to Tawney and did not enter either one to make a speech. O. M. Levang, campaign manager for Anderson, at 1 o'clock this afternoon, said Anderson's majority will be close to 3,000. His majorities as far as received are: Dodge county, 544; Olmstead, 609; Freeborn, 744; Fillmore (Anderson's home), 1013; Houston, 364; Waseca, 495; Mower, about 400. In Steele county the vote will be about evenly divided and in Wabasha and Winona (Tawney's home) counties Tawney will get a considerable majority.

Two Years Ago

Two years ago when T. V. Knatvold was a candidate against Tawney, the vote in the counties in the district was as follows:

County	Knatvold	Tawney
Dodge	881	870
Fillmore	1619	1633
Freeborn	1964	1269
Houston	533	488
Mower	1328	1857
Steele	343	654
Olmstead	902	1440
Waseca	294	474
Wabasha	237	817
Winona	376	1626

Tawney's majority, 8484 11,451

Fillmore Goes 2 to 1

PRESTON, Minn., Sept. 21.—(Special).—The result of the primaries held in Fillmore county yesterday is as follows: Tawney defeated by about 2 to 1, 1,050 majority.

Thomas Frankson and J. O. Rustad were nominated for the legislature. S. A. Nelson carries the county for senator against J. T. Bunn, by about 75 majority.

Sam Partridge of Spring Valley defeats J. W. Hopp, present county attorney, by about 25 majority.

All the old county officers were renominated. Friends of Sydney Anderson here give to Thomas Morris much of the credit for the large vote given Anderson, as a result of the splendid speech in his behalf made by Senator Morris in this city.

ESCH ADDRESSES WAR VETERANS AT COLBY

Congressman John J. Esch left this morning for Colby, Clark county, Wis., where he will this afternoon address the members of the Clark County Veterans' association. A big celebration is planned at Colby and the address of Mr. Esch will be one of the features of the program.

TAFT RAPS PORK BARREL FOR RIVER

Says it Is Not the Proper Way to Go About Improvement of Mississippi for Commerce

NEW LAW WILL AID RIVERMEN

Railroads will Be Prevented from Cutting Rates to Kill Water Competition

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 20.—In a determined attack on the present "pork barrel" system of river improvement appropriation, President Taft in his speech here said in part: "Today you are celebrating the opening of another great improvement which must in the future have much to do with the business growth of the city. I mean the improvement of the Ohio river from Pittsburgh to Cairo. It is to this improvement that I shall direct my remarks: "The waterways commission points out that in localities where waterborne traffic has increased, as on the great lakes, careful and elaborate provision has been made for the handling of freight in the most economical manner. An examination shows that the average rate of speed of a railroad car loaded with freight is not much greater than would be the speed of a tug boat and barges on one of our rivers; and if we could have a river navigable at all time of the year at the same depth there would seem to be no reason why schedules could not be made quite as regular as those upon railways.

Railroad Has Advantage

"One of the great reasons for the decrease of river transportation has been the competition of railways physical advantages. More than these traffic managers of railways have lowered their own traffic rates where there is water competition until the river business has been entirely discouraged and then raised the rates when the river business has been thus suppressed. Provisions have been made in the railway act, passed at the last session of congress which will prevent railways adopting this device of destroying river competition. The truth is that with the new development of river business it will be possible to give power to our interstate commerce commission to make regulations for the joint traffic between rivers and railways that will greatly encourage the continuance of the river business, for if we would use our waterways in the most economical manner there must be a friendly co-operation as the waterways commission points out between those engaged in transportation on the water and those by rail.

"The cost of the improvement of the Ohio river is to be upwards of $63,000,000. The plan is to appropriate sufficient money each year so as to complete all the work in twelve years. I wish that congress had arranged to expend the money in less time and complete this work, for its completion is not alone important for the immediate benefit that it will confer commercially in the Ohio Valley but it is important to vindicate or discourage further investments of this kind in other directions.

Wants Work Hurried

"I earnestly hope that the time may come in the not distant future when the plan for completing this Ohio river improvement shall be changed so as to make the time six years for completion instead of twelve. One of the great hindrances to the success of the improvement of our waterways has been the delay incident to the completion of each project. That has grown out of the method pursued in framing the river and harbor appropriation bills.

"As these waterway improvements are to be carried on in upwards of two-thirds of the congressional districts, it can be readily understood what the pressure is from their representatives in congress to have a project that is approved appropriated for. This is done with very little regard to the comparative merits of the different improvements and it has a tendency to delay every improvement a number of years beyond the time when it might be made profitable by early completion. This is what has been called the 'piece meal' policy and is very unsatisfactory.

In Orders of Importance

"A supervising board of engineers should recommend to congress the improvements in order of their importance and should have the power to advise that body that the beginning of certain improvements should be postponed until other improvements are carefully finished. It by no means follows that a departure from the present system would postpone the completion of many of these improvements any more than they are likely to be delayed under the present system.

The Piece Meal Scheme

"It is doubtful how far, by executive orders, I can go in directing engineers to make recommendations informing congress as to the

TAG DAY HERE TO BE GREAT SUCCESS

Miss Gertrude Hogan Feels Confident that a Visiting Nurse for La Crosse Is Assured

WORKERS MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

All who will Aid in Work Asked to Be at Congregational Church Parlor at 7:15

What Some Have Done
• Manager MacWilliams of the Bijou theater will donate his Saturday matinee receipts to the fund to secure a traveling nurse for La Crosse.
• Peter Valler, secretary of the La Crosse City Railway company has granted permission to the "taggers" to board the street cars and tag passengers.
• Manager Koppelberger has granted permission to the "taggers" to occupy the lobby at the Majestic Saturday.
• Prominent citizens have contributed their automobiles for use on this day.
• And many ambitious young women have contributed their efforts to make Tag Day a big success.

If enthusiasm and hard work can bring results "Tag Day" in La Crosse will be a great success. Members of the committee in charge of the affair today state positively that when the receipts are counted Saturday night enough will have been realized to hire a traveling nurse for La Crosse.

At 7:15 o'clock Friday night a meeting will be held in the parlors of the Congregational church, Seventh and Main streets, of all who will take part or assist in the work Tag Day. This announcement was made by Miss Gertrude Hogan this morning.

Headquarters will be established Saturday in the Y. M. C. A. building and from there Miss Florence Easton, Mesdames Finch, Suiter and Gelatt will direct the operations of the "taggers."

Many citizens have donated the use of their automobiles to the taggers and these will be used for supply wagons and to carry the taggers to you if you're not on the street.

The girls of the high school and the normal school and the faculties of both schools will act as taggers as well as all others who care to enlist their services in the cause and the meeting at the Congregational church Friday evening is to equip them with badges and put the taggers through a course of instruction. There is no specified amount to be given," said Miss Gertrude Hogan today, "and anyone can give just what they please."

"All the taggers will be chaperoned and will be stationed throughout the city. We will also appoint some to make the offices."

"We are bound to meet with success Saturday and that the plan is well received by citizens is shown by the fact that Manager MacWilliams of the Bijou theater has donated his matinee receipts Saturday to the cause. Secretary Peter Valler of the La Crosse City Railway has granted us permission to board street cars and tag passengers and Manager Koppelberger of the Majestic theater has granted us permission to station 'taggers' in the lobby of the theater during the matinee performance Saturday. Many citizens have donated automobiles for our use. In my opinion there is no doubt but what the day will be a great success."

The following is a partial list of the names of La Crosse women who are working hard for the success of Tag Day in La Crosse:

At the headquarters will be Mrs. Finch, Mrs. Dr. Suiter, Mrs. Gelatt and Miss Florence Easton.
As a committee for asking for taggers and as chaperones and taggers, Mrs. Kleber, Mrs. Prof. Sanford, Mrs. Orlando Tolway, Miss Dorset, Mrs. Geo. Schweizer, Mrs. Geo. ### CRIPPEN AND MISS LENEVE ARE HELD

Bound Over to the Central Criminal Court After Police Court Hearing Today

DEFENDANTS ASHEN WHITE

Procedure Is Only Usual, Says Newton, who Represents His Method of Defense

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Dr. H. H. Crippen and Miss Ethel Clare Leneve were today bound over to the central criminal court (old Bailey) to be tried at the October term for the murder of Belle Elmore Crippen, the doctor's wife.

Arthur Newton, attorney for the prisoners, offered no defense at the conclusion of the hearing in the Bow street police court, explaining to magistrate De Rutzen that he would reserve the defense until they are placed on trial.

Defendants Ashen White

Both Crippen and Miss Leneve grew ashen white when the magistrate announced his decision though it was a foregone conclusion such would be the outcome of the hearing. Both, however, retained their composure.

In delivering his decision, Magistrate De Rutzen said: "Without expressing any opinion regarding the evidence against the prisoners, particularly Miss Leneve, I think there is sufficient warrant for the committal of both to the central criminal court."

Is Usual Procedure

Newton explained his refusal to offer any defense at this time on the ground that in cases of such importance the inevitable rule of the police courts is to bind the prisoners over to the higher court. He said his action must not be construed in the least as any admission of the weakness of his defense.

The next step will be the return of indictments by the grand jury in which Crippen will be charged with the commission of the murder of his wife and Miss Leneve with being an accessory after the fact.

Demonstration Against Girl

LONDON, Sept. 21.—The Crippen case trial was resumed today. Hundreds of people gathered about the Bow Station began hooting and hissing Miss Leneve the moment she stepped from the cab. Quickly realizing the menacing attitude of the mob the two officers that accompanied the girl from Holloway jail, summoned the score of police that were guarding the entrance to the police court and the squad formed a cordon about Miss Leneve and fought back the belligerent spectators until the prisoner was inside the court building. The demonstration against Miss Leneve was wholly unexpected and was the result of the testimony at Monday's inquest of Mrs. Emily Jackson that Miss Leneve had told her that if Mrs. Crippen were out of the way Dr. H. H. Crippen would marry her. Miss Leneve almost collapsed at the first show of the hostile demonstration

CHAIRMAN DAVIES TO TEST THE LAW

Many Democrats Cannot Get Names on Ticket as Party Candidates

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 21.—T. H. Hanna, democratic candidate for the nomination for state senator at the primary election in the Twenty-third senatorial district failed to receive 20 per cent of the party vote in that district, according to the certified returns made to Secretary of State Frear, and therefore failed to receive the democratic nomination under the primary law, and it was ordered by the board of state canvassers, that he be deemed an independent candidate for that office and "his name shall be placed on the official ballot in the column of individual nominations, and he shall be denoted in such column as 'independent.'"

There are, of course, many other instances in the state where democratic candidates failed to receive the required number of votes, all of which are not yet known to the state board of canvassers, nor will they be known until complete returns have been made to the secretary of state.

The action of the state board in the present case, however, was taken in advance at the request of Chairman Joseph E. Davies of the democratic state committee to give him an opportunity to complain of the law before the courts and to provide a course of action wherein a judicial determination may be sought.

Chairman Davies will now take steps to bring the 20 per cent feature of the primary law before the courts for a judgment upon its constitutionality. He will proceed by mandamus to compel the secretary of state to place the name of Mr. Hanna on the ballot as the regular democratic nominee or to require the state board of canvassers to issue to Mr. Hanna a certificate of nomination as such candidate.

The time in which the question may be brought to an issue is short and Mr. Davies will seek the indulgence of the courts to hear the matter without delay.

Secretary of State Frear has already asked the attorney general for an opinion upon the constitutionality of the law. There was a statement published some time since that the attorney general stood ready to write an opinion holding the 20 per cent feature of the primary law unconstitutional. That statement, however, was without any foundation of fact, and it may be safely doubted that such an opinion will be forthcoming. The state board of canvassers consists of Secretary of State J. A. Frear, State Treasurer A. H. Dahl and Attorney General Frank L. Gilbert.

ENDS HIS LIFE WITH DYNAMITE

WAUKESHA, Wis., Sept. 21.—The mangled remains of William Busse, Jr., of Templeton, a small village near here, were found in front of his home yesterday, and after an investigation by the coroner it was decided that he had taken his own life.

From the position of the remains it was concluded that Busse had placed his head upon a granite boulder and exploded a charge of dynamite beside it. The head was blown to pieces and parts of his body flew many yards. It was the finding of a hand in the road in front of the house that led to the discovery of the tragedy.

Nothing is known as to the cause for the suicide. Busse was a rock man employed in the quarries in Templeton.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A La Crosse Citizen Shows How to Cure Them

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. La Crosse people testify to permanent cures.

C. J. Miller, 1406 Badger St., La Crosse, Wis., says: "I had kidney complaint for several years and my back ached most of the time. I also had attacks of rheumatism and often my whole body ached. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Erhart & Son's Drug Store, have given me great relief and consequently I cannot say too much in their favor."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

MUST STAND TRIAL FOR BICYCLE THEFT

Andrew Nelson claims that he "bumped" from St. Paul to La Crosse and carried his bicycle with him. So when he came out of a saloon he grabbed what he thought was his own machine—at least that is what he says—and started to ride across the wagon bridge. He was intercepted by a policeman and arrested for stealing.

"When I come to look at the wheel," said Nelson to Judge Brindley yesterday, "I don't believe I could swear that this machine is mine. The question, judge, is where is my wheel?"

"I don't know," said the judge, "but you're held for trial in circuit court."

GIRL IS WITNESS AGAINST MOTHER

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 21.—Upon the testimony of her daughter Mary, 11, will depend the fate of Mrs. Annie Mazarik, who has been placed on trial charged with the killing of her husband in July. It is said the girl was the only one present.

whose life has been entirely devoid of mystery.

At the time the fatal shots were fired one of which penetrated his heart, Heath was kneeling and applying a coat of paint to a baseboard in one of the rooms of the house. The idea of suicide is apparently made impossible by the fact that one of the three shots fired in the room penetrated the wall in such a manner that it could not have been fired by him.

So wide has been the interest in the case that Attorney General Sergeant of Vermont has decided to appear with States Attorney Hunt when the case is called again. Harlan B. Howe, has been engaged by Mrs. Dodge and will be assisted by some of the best attorneys in the state insuring a bitter legal fight.

STUDENT RIOTS AT LAWRENCE

APPLETON, Wis., Sept. 21.—A riot is in progress today, the result of warring freshmen and sophomores of Lawrence College which has raged in this city for the past two days. The authorities are unable to restrain the student mob and the town is in their control.

As a result of the latest depredations Earl Tippets, president of the freshmen class and "Bill" Wade, bully of the school, are today incarcerated in a hut on Blackbird island, Lake Winnebago, where they were taken early today after being kidnaped by sophomore students. A launch has been chartered by the freshmen today and they are enroute to the island to rescue the two students. It is feared bodily harm will result in the clash to come when they reach the island.

Four freshmen were thrown into the Fox river at an early hour today and one freshman student was made to stand head foremost in the city fountain pool until he was nearly drowned.

ST. CLOUD PRIEST CALLED BY DEATH

ST. CLOUD, Minn., Sept. 21.—Rev. Boniface Moll is dead. Father Boniface was well known in this country as he had served the Catholic church in various capacities. He was born at Eichstaedt, in Bavaria, May 29, 1840. In 1868, he entered the novitiate of the Order of St. Benedict at St. Vincent's abbey in Pennsylvania. He was chaplain at the German orphanage at St. Paul from 1900 to 1904, when he took the same position at St. Joseph's home in St. Cloud. The funeral will be held Tuesday morning at the abbey.

DEEP MYSTERY IN SHOOTING OF PAINTER

LUNENBURG, Vt., Sept. 20.—Every effort of the state's attorney and counsel for Mrs. Florence M. Dodge to lift the impenetrable veil of mystery surrounding the murder of William Heath, a painter, at the woman called to face murder theories to even suggest a possible day. An adjournment was taken indefinitely with the probability of the coming up on Thursday.

Although so far as has been developed, Mrs. Dodge was alone in her home when Heath was killed and no other workman was within hearing of the fatal revolver shot, the case of the state is tottering owing to the absolute inability of the authorities to even suggest a possible motive which could have prompted the wealthy widow to shoot down in cold blood a practically unknown workman employed for a day in her home.

Mrs. Dodge is wealthy, unincumbered and according to her neighbors a perfectly normal woman.

THE TRIBUNE FOR ESCH
The Tribune has so far completed its examination of the records of John J. Esch that it feels qualified to assume a position in relation to the contest between himself and the contest between himself and Irvine Cameron Baldwin. The Tribune will support Mr. Esch, and will employ all its influence to secure his re-election to congress.
The record shows conclusively that in every act in congress initiated by Mr. Esch and in every measure which he gave earnest support and endorsement, he was staunchly and intelligently progressive. The record also shows that, like a majority of men whose political education was secured in the school of Blaine and Mc-Kinley, Mr. Esch frequently stood with the progressives in skirmishes with matters where factional lines were drawn, but on the final vote he was recorded with those who recognized the ruling president as the greatest political authority, to oppose him is party disloyalty. There is a new school of political thought and action, born in the last decade, and the record shows that the gradual adoption by Mr. Esch of the methods and methods of this new idea leads to no one, not even the president, the right to dictate conduct at variance with personal conviction.
We believe his progress in that direction has been more rapid than has that of nine-tenths of the lifelong publicans now in official life, and we feel justified in saying that Mr. Esch is a progressive in every sense of the word. We recognize the excellent service that he has given, and we have no tendency to indulge in carping criticism of such of his official acts as have not been agreeable to us. There has been no act on the part of Mr. Esch that is open to such criticism as has been justly aimed at system servitors in congress, and he has in no sense been one of them. His career has been wholesome and patriotic, and we believe he is deserving of the confidence and the support of the republicans of the Seventh Congressional district.

A GOOD JOB
The defeat of "Jim" Tawney has been accomplished. Another big gun in the fortifications of standpattism has been spiked. There is no achievement in the entire field of progressive republican activities this year of greater importance than that which is represented by the retirement of this clever and pliant tool of the system. The republicans of Minnesota's First District are to be congratulated. They have beaten what was probably the most perfect and domineering private political organization ever created by a congressman for the perpetuation of his official life.
The Minnesota progressives accomplished this against tremendous odds. Practically every newspaper in the district was controlled by Tawney, and the facts as to his record could not be given to the public except by word of mouth. It was this fact that led The Tribune to urge Wisconsin progressives to enter the fight in behalf of Sydney Anderson.
They did enter the fight, and went into every county in the district.
They helped Sydney Anderson tell the voters the truth; and the truth beat "Jim" Tawney.
In following Sydney Anderson through this struggle to his triumph of yesterday, progressives of Wisconsin have learned much about him. From the outset it was apparent that he was a man of vigor and determination, and was capable of putting up a fight spectacular in its aggressive force. To this has been added the knowledge that Sydney Anderson is a man of keen intelligence and deep conviction. He is young and comparatively inexperienced, but he combines qualities which mark him as a coming man.
There is no taint of the weakling upon him, and we predict that in his career the people who have nominated him will be given an opportunity to realize the distinction between a truly powerful statesman and a clever truckler to the political machinery of a monopolistic system.

OH, YOU FUNNY GELATT
R. B. Gelatt in Morning Chronicle editorial Sept. 11 — "Our sporting blood is aroused by the suggestion that a number of our local politicians be organized for an invasion of 'Jim' Tawney's congressional district over in Minnesota and we sincerely hope the plan will come to something. The proposition, as we understand it, is to send over into the Tawney district the Hon. John Esch, the Hon. Tom Morris, the Hon.
Herman Ekern, the Hon. Otto Boss-hard, the Hon. John McConnell, and a few other powerful orators from this neck-o-the-woods, and simply 'swamp' the Hon. 'Jim' before he really knows what is happening to him. And now that this fine scheme is well a-foot we trust that nothing may happen to upset it. Our idea is that the republicans of the First Minnesota district are a pretty sensible lot of people and we'd really like to know about that, even at some risk to the political ambitions of the able and influential republican who represents them in congress. So we want to see the army of invasion 'move' on the Tawney works at the earliest possible movement and do its worst. And if 'Jim' Tawney can't sit with his hands folded and win his renomination against the whole contingent of Wisconsin jaw-smiths, we hope he'll be knocked higher than Gilderoy's kite. We should be ashamed of him if he opened his mouth to defend himself before the constituency that he has given national prominence, against a horde of mudslingers from a state that wears a boss's ring in its nose."

R. B. Gelatt in Morning Chronicle editorial Sept. 15 — "If Mr. Gifford Pinchot cannot get back into the First Minnesota district right away, we suggest that the rampant Wisconsin reformers who have been threatening to go there and wipe Congressman Tawney off the political map ought to 'get busy.' . . .
Where, we beg to ask, is the Army of Invasion? Where is the Honorable Tom Morris? And Otto Bosshard?
And all of the other Wisconsin insurgents who were going over to make mince meat of Tawney's political pretensions? Where, indeed, is the Honorable Gifford Pinchot himself?"
The army of invasion has returned from the invasion, Mr. Gelatt.
And where, we beg to ask, is the Hon. "Jim" Tawney?

The stupidity of The Chronicle's contention that local progressive republican leaders are opposing Mr.
Esch is apparent because of the fact that its refutation is certain. These leaders are engaged in a campaign in which they will all make speeches.
We suggest that these speeches will constitute a conclusive answer to the allegations of the Esteemed Etc.

justly celebrated "Winona speech"

Bulls and Bulls
T. P. O'Connor, the witty Irish parliamentarian, discussed at a dinner in New York the bull.
"The bull," said he, "isn't confined to Ireland. It was an Englishman, you know, an English judge, who, being told by a tramp, that he was unmarried, replied: 'Well, that's a good thing for your wife.'"
"And it was a French soldier who, sleeping in his tent, with a stone jar for a pillow, replied, on being asked if the jar wasn't too hard, 'Oh, no; I've stuffed it, you see, with hay.'"
"And it was an American politician here in New York who cried the other night from the tailboard of a dray: 'If we remain silent the people will not hear our heartrending cries.'"—New York Tribune.

"Well, heaven knows you need one," assented Dollie. — Toledo

Worse Than Pessimism Andrew Carnegie at a dinner in Washington deplored the world's excessive armaments.
"All these billions wasted on battleships," he said, "are declared to do good in providing work, in creating prosperity. That is a shallow and false optimism."
"That, in fact, reminds me of the man who said, when his wages were cut down: 'Well, there's one comfort.
When I'm laid up sick I won't lose as much money as I used to.'" —Washington Star.

Always Positive
"When in doubt, tell the truth," advised Mark Twain. Some people are never in doubt, it seems.

A Deed in the Dark
"You stand this side, Bill, and I'll go the other! When he gets between us we'll swipe out with our knuckle-dusters! His! Avant!" The night was dark, the alley darker still, as the two hoodlums prepared to silence the unwary traveler.
Was there no voice to warn him of his impending doom?
Silence—save for the nearing footsteps. A scuffle—two groans—and the footsteps passed slowly on.
"Bill, did yer swipe 'im?"
"Yus! An' 'e's got me an' un'oly clop on the side of the jaw! Arf me teeth's gone!"
"An' 'e's near knocked me 'ead off, and not turnin' a 'air 'issell!" Some blessed prize fighter, I'll say!
Oh, my 'ead!"
And, to this day, stone-deaf, old Mr. Jones has no suspicion from what a dire fate the sudden tying of a shoelace saved him.—Answers.

A Godsend to Sickly Children
Mr. N. L. Duffee, of Helena, Ala., the thankful father of a little baby girl who was made healthy and fat after she was not expected to live, writes: "Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is the finest of medicines. I have a girl baby, now 5 months old, who until she was 2 months old we hardly saw any chance of raising her. At that time I procured a bottle of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and gave her a few drops at a time. Now she is acknowledged to be the finest looking baby in town. Baby is still growing as fat as a pig."

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey can be safely given to children, no matter what age, in small doses. It is just the right thing for them when they have coughs, colds or any throat or stomach troubles that are so prevalent with the children. It is an abstimulant and tonic. It is invaluable for overworked men and delicate women.

The Fussy Man
Every one knows one or more of those conscientious egotists who cannot rid themselves of the idea that no one can be trusted to carry out the simple details of routine work without their personal supervision.
It was one of these men who sailed for America leaving in his brother's care a parrot, of which he was very fond. All the way across the Atlantic he worried about the bird, and no sooner had he landed at New York than he sent over this telegram to his brother:
"Be sure and feed parrot."
And the brother cabled back:
"Have fed him, but he's hungry again. What shall I do next?"

It Finished the Doctor A gaunt and killed Scotsman made his appearance in a country village, and was endeavoring to charm the locals to charity with selections on his bagpipe. A shaggy haired man opened the front door of a house and barked to the minstrel.
"Gie us a wee bit lilt just out here," he said, in an accent which told that he also was from the land of the haggis. "My aul mither's in a creetial condection oppastir. The doctor's w' her the noo, and says the pipes may save her life." Up and down in front of the house marched the braw Hielander, discouraging music that might well have been incidental to a cat and dog fight. Presently the shaggy haired man came out again.
"Gie us the 'Dead March' noo," he said.
"Is the pulr auld lady gone?" questioned the piper.
"Na, na, mon; ye've saved mither," came the reply; "but ye've killed

At The Theater
LA CROSSE THEATER TONIGHT The period of Margaret Anglin's play is the ante-bellum days when Mrs. Lincoln presided at the White house and the Crinoline was paramount in female fashion. Margaret Anglin in her play, "The Awakening of Helena Richie," of course, wears costumes that are seemingly identical with the fashions that prevailed at that time, but, as a matter of fact (and this is a state secret) she does not wear a crinoline, and yet her skirts are so contrived by a clever dressmaker with stiff buckram and a small modicum of whalebone here and there artfully placed so as to preserve the line of her graceful figure while at the same time from the front of the theater her costumes appear sartorially and historically correct. Thus may it be said that Miss Anglin is an artist in more than one sense of the word.

HOW HE GOT HIS START
W. Somerset Maugham, the author of "Mrs. Dott," Miss Billie Burke's new play, to be seen at the La Crosse theater next Monday evening, was asked recently by a would-be playwright as to the best way to make a start. "I don't know," said Mr. Maugham. "I don't think there is any particular way to begin. You must just keep on trying and if you really have got the knack—if you know playwriting is only a knack after all—you'll land eventually. I used to think it would be a good thing to get known as a novelist and some novels that I wrote were very successful, but that didn't help me at all in getting a hearing for my plays."

The CARLETON CASE
BY ELLERY H. CLARK
Copyright by Bobbs-Merrill Company.

Vaughan shrugged his shoulders.
"Why, the supper's ordered," he answered, "so I suppose we might as well go ahead in solitary state. But it rather takes the edge off the thing.
It's too bad," and a moment or two later he added, half to himself, and half to his companion, "I don't know what to think of Jack, really." Helmar made no answer, and it was not until the supper was served, in the little private room, and the waiter had withdrawn, that they again returned to the subject. "What is it about Jack, anyway?" Helmar asked. "I was out at his place the other day, and he seemed to be making no end of trouble; everybody
been doing?"

Vaughan helplessly shook his head.
"Search me," he answered, "you know I scarcely see him now. He travels with a different crowd these days. But I guess since he joined the Mayflower he's changed quite a lot; playing the market, I hear, and
gone to pieces generally."

Helmar looked thoughtfully. "That's bad," he said shortly, and after a pause, "Never happen to hear any gossip about him and a girl, do you?"
Again Vaughan shook his head.
"No, I don't," he answered, "if he's doing anything of that sort, it's news to me. That is, I mean, anything really out of the way. Jack likes a good time, of course; we've always known that; but I don't believe he's that kind. I guess he's all right enough that way. At any rate, I've always understood that he was about as good as engaged to Marjorie Graham, and that ought to keep a fellow straight, if anything could."

Helmar nodded. "Yes," he answered abruptly, "I should say it ought. Well, never mind. Now I want to hear how things are going with you, Arthur. We'll talk about Jack later on."

And then, with the progress of the supper, the talk ran along as such talk will: each telling of past experiences, losses, gains; of future plans, hopes, fears; speaking of classmates and friends; skimming the passing events of the day; comparing notes on the thousand and one subjects that crowd the lips so readily when friends of long standing, who meet but seldom, settle down to the luxury of a leisurely, comfortable talk.
Meanwhile, far out on the Es-comb Road, the big motor bowed swiftly along. Carleton's arm was around the girl's waist, her head was on his shoulder, and she was smiling very young and innocent she looked, unless, in some occasional passing flash of light, one could have seen the look in her eyes which lay behind the smile. "Oh, this is so nice, Jack," she murmured; even the tone of her voice was a subtle caress, and she nestled a little closer to his side;
"I could keep on like this for ever; you were so good to take me, dear."

Carleton did not at once answer, and when he did, his tone seemed scarcely sentimental. Drowsiness, indeed, brought on by his many potations, rather than sentiment, appeared to be the spell which bound him, and his mind wandered irresponsibly in a dozen different directions at one and the same time.
"Say," he asked suddenly, "how'd you know where a letter'd get me, anyway?"

Had the girl's mood been real, the matter-of-fact, commonplace tone must have driven her to sudden anger; as it was, her sense of humor saved her, and after a moment or two, half in spite of herself, she gave a little laugh. "Why," she answered lightly, "from your good-looking friend, Doctor Helmar, of course," and the next instant could have bitten her tongue out for the chance words, as Carleton, for the moment startled into his senses, with a sudden exclamation sat bolt upright in his seat. "Helmar," he cried, as everything in one instant's flash came back to him, "tonight was the night.
Oh, Lord, I wouldn't have done this for a thousand dollars." Then leaning forward, to the chauffeur, "Here there, you stop a minute!" he cried; and fumbling in his pocket for his watch, he glanced at it, and then looked quickly around him. "Ten o'clock," he muttered, "we can make it," then aloud: "Put her round now, driver, and head her straight for town; let her out, and let her go!"

With a surprised grin, the chauffeur slowly slackened speed, reversed his power, and ponderously the big car turned about. The girl meantime protested vigorously. "No, no," she cried, why, Jack, we're almost out there now; what do you care for him, anyway? You wouldn't do a thing like that, Jack. You've got better manners than to leave me now. How shall I get home. Now, Jack—"

Carleton, with a most disconcerting lack of gallantry, obstinately shook his head. "This very important," he said, "we'll go back way of Birches; leave you there; this 'ceedingly important. You don't understand. You never went college.
Quintessential—no, quintessential—no, quinquennial—oh, damn, five years out of college, that's what it is. Special dinner. Oh, what a fool I was to forget. How could I?"
The girl sat with frowning brows.
"Oh, very well," she said, offended;
"you needn't ask me to go anywhere with you again; that's all;" and then, this remark having no noticeable effect, she began softly to cry.

Instantly Carleton's shifting mood had veered again, and in a moment his arm was once more around her waist, and he leaned protectively over her.
"Come, come," he cried, "don't do that. Can't stan' that. We'll go out there s'mother time, my dear. But not t'night, not t'night; special t'night; special; awful good fellows, both of 'em; better'n I am, damn sight. Both good fellows. Don't cry."

With a quick, sinuous movement she wrenched herself free, putting half the distance of the broad cushioned seat between them. "Don't," she cried, "I hate you!" and in constrained and moody silence the big motor whirled along upon its homeward way.

Nor was home to be gained without further misadventure. Presently, even before they had covered half the distance to The Birches, something went wrong with the machine, and the chauffeur, steering close to the side of the road, dismounted and began to search for the trouble, spurred on by the accompaniment of Carleton's speech, which seemed every moment to gain in picturesqueness and force. Suddenly out of the darkness appeared two broad white streaks of dazzling light, the wall of a horn sounded in their ears, and another automobile passed them, to draw up, just beyond, with a quick grinding and jarring of brakes. A friendly voice hailed them. "Anything wrong? Help you out?" Carleton started at the words. He leaned forward in the seat, and whispered hastily to the chauffeur. Instantly the latter answered, "No, thank you, sir, nothing wrong," and the second motor sped along upon its way.
Carleton's brow contracted. "Wonder if he saw," he muttered. "Light's pretty bright; looked like Marjorie, too; didn't know the colonel drove much at night, anyway." There was a moment's pause; then all at once, he added, "Friday! Friday! Good God! that was the other thing. Damn the luck! Damn everything!" and mingeling threats and entreaties, he renewed his urging to the worried chauffeur.

An hour later, at the Press Club, Vaughan's cigar was well under way, and Helmar was helping himself to a second cup of coffee, when suddenly the door burst open, and there appeared before them the somewhat steadfast figure of their absent friend. Before either of them could speak, he had begun a rambling and incoherent apology, continuing it as he sank limply into the chair reserved for him.

"Must excuse me," was the burden of his speech, "mem'ry comple'y went back on me; thoroughly 'shame myself—' and there was much more in the same vein; then, all at once reaching the sentimental stage of his orgy, he began to develop a vein of maudlin self-pity. "Helmar," he cried despairingly, "you been good fren' me always. I tell you, 's no good. I try—I try's hard's anyone—and oh, Helmar—" his voice broke, and with a mixture of the ridiculous and the pathetic that made both his hearers choke a little hysterically, even while their eyes were moist, he culminated despairingly. "'S no use, fellars; 's no use; I'll tell you where I'm going; I'm going to hell in a hack; thash what I am," and forthwith he laid his head upon the table, and began to weep.

It was long after midnight when Helmar and Vaughan finally deposited him, remonstrating and unwilling, in safety at the Mayflower, leaving him in skilful hands well versed in the treatment of his malady, and found themselves, flushed, weary, and not in the best of humors, again in the street.

"And so ends our great reunion," said Vaughan, mopping his heated forehead. "Jack ought to feel pleased with himself; he's certainly succeeded in knocking all the pleasure out of it for everybody, about as well as any one could. And I think, on the whole, that I'm inclined to agree with him about where he's bound."

Helmar sighed a sigh of honest disappointment and anxiety. "Jack's a mighty good fellow," he answered, "but he's certainly in a bad way now. If he ever means to amount to anything, he's got to fight, and fight hard, too. Well, come on, Arthur, I suppose we'd better get to bed," and thus the long-planned quinquennial reunion came sadly and dimly to an end.

CHAPTER IV.
A Fool and His Money Wherein I spake of most disas- trous chances."—Shakespeare.

Jack Carleton stood in front of the ticker in Turner and Driver's office, letting the narrow white ribbon run lightly through his fingers. For the moment he was alone. The big clock over in the postoffice building had just boomed slowly, the hour of twelve, and the little knot of customers, calmly or hurriedly, according to their several temperaments, had one by one gone out to lunch, for man must eat, though black care sit at his elbow. And indeed, though the little ticker still buzzed and whirled unceasingly, and the tape, with scarcely a halt or pause in its onward course, still ran as smoothly and persistently as ever, for the second time the worst of the drive seemed really to be over. So that presently Carleton lifted his eyes, red-rimmed and tired from the blur of black and white beneath them, letting the quotations run on unheeded, and stood with eyes fixed on the spot where, just visible through the very top of the tall window, framed in with line and bar of blackened roof and dingy chimney top, there smiled cheerfully down into the gloom of the darkened office a cloudless patch of bright blue sky.

Imperceptibly the sound of the ticker ceased, and the white ribbon began fantastically to curl and twist in his hand, for all unconsciously his fingers had closed upon it, checking its smoothness of its onward flow.
The little patch of blue sky had sent his thoughts wandering far afield.
A moment before he had been standing there in the office, wondering miserably whether to try to pull out, while there was yet time, with a good part of his little fortune gone, or whether, with anchors grapping desperately for holding ground, to strive somehow to ride out the storm. And now, so long had his mind run upon things trivial and unimportant, that despite the panic, despite the danger he was in, thanks to that casual upward glance, he stood aloof in imagination at the first tee at the Country club, the green of the valley lying smooth and fair beneath him, the couple ahead just disappearing over the farther dip of the hill, and he himself, welllimbered up, driver in hand, in the act of placing the new white ball on the well-made tee, properly confident of smashing it out a hundred and eighty yards away, amid the close-cropped velvet of the rolling turf. Absolutely a perfect day, he reflected, for the medal round; no wind, a bright sun, green quick, yet true—and above all, he felt that he could win. Barnes was entered, of course, and Henderson himself—he was paired with him—and Henderson had told Jake Rogers that since he had changed his grip he could "put it all over" Carleton, match or medal, any time they met. Rogers, with his little crooked smile, had taken pains, of course, to repeat the remark, and while Jack had laughed and said, "Oh, sure, he can lick me all right," in his own heart of hearts, nevertheless, he knew that he could trim Henderson, and somewhat grimly had awaited his chance. About a hundred and sixty would do it, he figured; say a seventy-nine today and an eighty-one tomorrow—two such perfect days in succession could hardly be—yes, about a couple of eighties would do the trick.

POSSE FAILS TO FIND MURDERER

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., Sept. 21.—Coroner Wm. McKinley, District Attorney Gawthrop of Westchester and a posse of twelve men have so far failed to secure any trace of Tom Baker, suspected of the murder of Mrs. John Saus of Byers, her daughters Mary, 4, May, 11, and son Charles, 4. They were found with their heads terribly battered in the Saus home when the husband and father returned last night. A small bank containing $45 and a bank book showing a deposit of $800 was missing, and this is thought to furnish a motive for the murder. The mother had apparently been beaten to death with a club, while the skulls of the children were crushed with an axe. Friends of Baker say he could not possibly have committed the crime.

21 years old. She yesterday passed the state examination and was given a license. In discussing her chosen profession today, Miss White said: "A woman driver is likely to be more sober and less reckless than a man and not so likely to indulge in joy riding."

GREAT DISPLAY FOR THE WOMEN

Fancy Work, Art and Culinary Departments at the Fair Break All Records

Never in the history of the La Crosse Interstate Fair have the several women's departments been so well filled as they will be at the big fair next week. Entries for fancy work, canned goods, bread, cake and art displays are being received from all over the northwest and a force of clerks is kept busy in Secretary Van Aukens's office, making the entries as rapidly as possible. Almost as many entries have been received in the fancy work department up to date as there were altogether upon some occasions, and by the time the exposition building is opened to the public next Tuesday morning it is expected additional room will be required to display the exhibits.

The swine, sheep and cattle departments are also filling up and when Secretary Van Aukens and Jesse Brenner return from the fairs that are being held this week, they will have many more entries to add to the list. Attractions of all kinds are coming in and the fair grounds will be better filled this year than ever before.

REAL FUNCTIONS OF VISITING NURSE

IDEA WAS STARTED IN 1859

William Rathbone and Florence Nightingale the Prime Movers in the Matter

The requirements of the visiting nurse are not only practical and professional, but in a large measure spiritual. Purity of motives, integrity of work and broad social conceptions of duty to mankind, are for her not remote ideals, but necessary qualities in satisfactorily carrying out the daily routine.

Confusion has prevailed, however, as to the exact functions of the visiting nurse, partly because of the eagerness to use her services for purposes other than those definitely within her province, partly because of a more or less sentimental conception of her duties, and partly because she has frequently been employed as a missionary for special evangelical work. Understanding of her real work in the community has thus been delayed. While without doubt she has been valuable to these movements, this incidental use of her training and skill has made more difficult the establishment of a thorough system of adequate care of the sick in their homes which would compare with the existing standards of nursing in institutions.

The visiting nurse's associations emphasize the importance of a work organized distinctly for the purpose of supplying trained nurses to give home care to the sick poor and those of small means. In addition to the humanitarian and social reasons for urging adequate nursing of people in their homes, is the important one of the economy to the community in thus caring for the sick. The available space in hospitals is entirely inadequate for meeting the demands of all who need nursing care. Certain acute and chronic cases do well at home under proper conditions, while many patients cannot or will not go to the hospitals. The costly hospital space may well be reserved, then, for those who need it urgently.

Plan Started in 1859

William Rathbone put into practical operation in 1859 the idea of utilizing the services of the trained visiting nurse in the homes of the sick poor. Florence Nightingale had demonstrated to the world the importance of educating and organizing women for that large work peculiarly adapted to them—nursing the sick, and training the community in the essentials of hygiene, that sickness may be prevented. Until Mr. Rathbone started his memorable work in Liverpool, Miss Nightingale's efforts had been directed to war, hospital, and institutional nursing. The utilization in the homes of the people of nurses at the same time became teachers and sought to remove the causes underlying much of the trouble, was astute and logical from the philanthropist's point of view, as well as from that of the generally good citizen. The adoption of district nursing in England was generally from the beginning of the movement.

In America, the movement did not take root until 1877, when the Women's Branch of the New York City Mission sent the first trained nurses into the homes of the poor.

Two years later, the Society for Ethical Culture, New York City, placed a nurse for similar work in one of the city dispensaries. For a number of years extension of the movement was exceedingly slow. In 1890 there were but twenty-one associations in all of the United States, the greater number of these employing but one nurse. It was not until 1894, that any real impetus was given to the work. From that time on the growth has been more rapid, and from 1905, remarkably so. In that year statistics show 171 associations in 110 different cities or towns, employing 445 nurses.

There were a year ago, 565 associations with a staff of 1413 nurses. In 1907, 67 new societies were organized. In 1908, 112 new ones were started, and in the first six months of 1909, 75 others were formed. The expansion of ideas of social betterment has been significant in this connection, and the visiting nurse has been recognized as an essential factor in carrying out many of its details. Thus, in America, there has been of late years a remarkable increase in the social welfare work entrusted to trained nurses, and the use of their services by municipalities has been a most significant feature in the development of this movement.

35 KILLED IN TRACTION CRASH

Fatal Accident Today on the Wabash Valley Near Bluffton, Indiana

BLUFFTON, Ind., Sept. 21.
—Thirty-five persons were killed in a head on collision between two Wabash Valley Traction cars six miles from Bluffton this afternoon. A number of others were injured.
The following people were among the killed, all of Bluffton: Seymour Robinson, candidate for county auditor; J.
C. Justice, Ernest Crouse, Wm.
Beer, H. C. Cook, W. C. Burgen and wife, Dubois, Del Locke, proprietor of the Bliss House.
Physicians and nurses have been rushed from Bluffton to the scene of the accident. The dead are lying in a field alongside the torn up tracks. The northbound traction car was loaded with excursionists on their way to the county fair.
At 3 o'clock 26 bodies had been removed from the wreckage.

relative importance of the projects adopted and entered upon. I think I have gone as far as I can in this matter and I shall ask congress for more power at its next session.
"In signing the last river and harbor bill which was subject to the criticism that many items were contained therein that were merely "piece meal" and indicated to congress that the passage of another bill of that character would merit a veto. Certainly, until this fundamental form is put into effect, the improvement of our rivers and inland waterways will be chiefly important because of local advantage of the money expended and not because of the betterment of our transportation.

"The evil in the corrupt control of a congress or a legislature by private interests is manifest and always calls for condemnation. But there is another kind of legislative abuse as dangerous and that is the selfish combination of the representatives of the majority to expend the money of the government for the temporary benefit of a part or with little benefit to the whole. It is the duty of the majority and the minority to legislate always for the benefit of the whole people and any enactments that look to the selfish exploitation of less than the whole at the expense of the whole and without benefit to the whole is a species of legislative abuse that comes very near corruption in its effect and is perhaps more dangerous than corruption because those who support such a combination are generally bold in its defense.

Hits at Trading
"The days of the pork barrel should be numbered. The country is rushed against corporate or corrupt control of legislative agencies but it is doubtful whether the constituencies as yet are able to perceive the higher obligation on the part of themselves and their representatives not to use their votes in combination to appropriate to a part that which belongs to the whole."

SETTLEMENT MADE IN DAMAGE SUIT

Mrs. Barbara Cummings, who brought suit against the C. B. & Q. railroad and the C. W. Noble Co. for $10,000 damages for the death of her husband, was yesterday afternoon given $5,500 by the railroad and the Noble company. The agreement to settle was decided upon after the case had proceeded one day.
The husband of Mrs. Cummings was a brakeman in the employ of the Burlington. While riding on a switch engine he was struck by a plank projecting from a scaffold where work was being done by the Noble company.

Attorney A. E. Bleckman represented Mrs. Cummings, while Attorneys Lees and Gordon appeared for the companies.

TAWNEY OUT; NYE AND STEVENS WIN

Leading Minnesota Standpatter Falls, while Two Others Get In by a Small Vote

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 21.
—Minnesota joined Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas and the other insurgent states at Tuesday's primaries, when James A. Tawney, the state's only out-and-o tu Cannonite and standpatter, was defeated and Congressmen Frank M. Nye and Frederick C.
Stevens, characterized as "half and half," barely squeezed in over their insurgent opponents. Tawney was defeated by 2,500 to 3,000 by Sydney Anderson, an almost unknown young attorney of Lanesboro, and Nye and Stevens were re-nominated by about 1,000 majority each.
All the other Minnesota congressmen, who are insurgents, are winners, several having no opposition.
The vote at the primaries was light compared with two years ago.

STORY OF GREAT POLITICAL FIGHT

"Jim" Tawney postmaster of the house of representatives and publisher of the Preston Times, a leading Tawney mouthpiece.

No one could be secured to act as chairman of the meeting at first.
Finally an opposing publisher was secured, and in introducing the speaker he actually apologized for his presence as chairman.

A Moment of Suspense

Langum and the rest of the Tawney machine were in the audience, the county officials having brought up the rear of the procession in a hesitating manner. The theater was packed to the doors, all the standing room taken, and scores were unable to get in.

"Don't be misled by editorials the authorship of which is inspired by the emoluments of a fat political job at Washington!" thundered Tom Morris.

A dead silence fell upon the audience. This thing aimed at the great and terrible Langum, and Langum in the audience? What manner of man was this who dared hurl defiance in the teeth of The Mighty? Men cautiously craned their necks to steal a glance at Publisher Langum.
His face was flushed, but he was engaged in no carnivorous attack upon those about him. In fact, he looked like a man whose "bluff" had been "called," and who was divided between impotent rage and a desire to drop through the floor.

Then a wave of enthusiasm swept over the place, and for fully five minutes that great audience of six hundred people, liberated by a fearless word from the dark, square jawed man from Wisconsin, shook the rafters with cheers and shouting.

Ten minutes later a similar demonstration followed the mention of Senator La Follette, and the meeting wound up in a wild show of patriotism from men who felt they had just heard their emancipation proclamation.

Preston, as has been said, is the greatest Tawney stronghold outside of Winona. Yesterday it gave Tawney 119 votes, and Anderson 200.

ENDS DYSPEPSIA IN FEW MINUTES

Gas, Heartburn, Sourness, Headache and all Stomach misery will go in about five minutes

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin.
This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, and relieve the sorest, acid stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming all foul, Nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula, plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms; and, besides, you will not need laxatives to keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas, or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin, which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and digest your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

COLLINS URGES LAGOON SCHEME

Alderman Says Commercially Pure Water Can Be Had for One-third Cost of City Plan

"Mr. Goodwin told me he was favorably impressed with the suggestion that the lagoon in Pettibone park be used as a reservoir from which to take the city water supply."

This statement was made to The Tribune today by Alderman William Collins, of the Second ward. Mr.
Collins is "the original lagoon man," and is one of a number of citizens who have been urging that by using the lagoon the need of a new pumping station would be removed.

"When Mr. Goodwin, of Goodwin & Harper, the experts who examined the situation and drew the administration's plans for a new water works system, was in the city I took the matter up with him," said Alderman Collins. "The plan I outlined to him was to dredge out the lagoon to a depth of 25 feet; to run an intake pipe straight across the river to a point on the island opposite the pumping station, and thence north to a point somewhere above a canal, which should connect the lagoon and river at the southern extremity of the lagoon.

Natural Filter
"The canal may or may not be necessary. Experts can decide that.
Enough water would percolate through the sand into the lagoon to supply any demand the city might make upon it. The canal will be needed only in case the water thus percolating into the lagoon should prove to be hardened by the process. If it would not, and no canals were used, we would get sand filtration without the expense of an artificial filter.

To Keep it Clear
"In case a canal is employed, a series of metal catch basins could be arranged to prevent drift and refuse backing into the lagoon by way of the canal. The water about the mouth of the intake could be screened off with sectional screens that could be removed and cleaned. The intake pipe could be introduced a dozen feet below the surface, thus giving cold water.

"Look into the lagoon next time you are over there. The water is clear as crystal, a beautiful blue.
The plan I suggest would give com-mercially pure water, and the equipment would cost less than a third the sum called for by the administration plans.

To Analyze It
"I am sending a sample of this
state university at Madison, for analysis.

"Many well informed citizens agree with me that this is the logical solution of our water problem. To investigate it would be inexpensive.
Mr. Goodwin told me he would make a report on it if it was wanted, but

CRIPPEN AND MISS LENEVE ARE HELD

court room the services of a physician were required to quiet her
hearing pale and trembling.

The excitement attending Miss Leneve's arrival was so great that Crippen, who was brought to the police court in a "Black Maria," was able to slip into the building unnoticed.

the building was doubled.

Miss M. L. Curnow, who succeeded Crippen as manager of a patent medicine house testified that she never knew of Crippen's using hyoscine, the poison which the prose-cution's expert witnesses have testified they found in the human remains supposed to be the body of Mrs. Crippen.

"The only remedies I ever knew him to use were those he got from our house," she said. "He also used a preparation of his own but I don't know what there was in it."

Miss Curnow said that Crippen warned her shortly before his flight not to answer any questions regarding him in his absence.

Manager Brett, of the Charing Cross bank, testified as to Crippen's bank account and Inspector Dew again repeated the story of Crippen's different stories regarding his wife's disappearance; the first made that she had gone to America to visit her people; and then the story that she had run away with another man.

Wm. Long, a dental mechanic in Crippen's office explained on the stand the mystery of the purchase of the boy's suit in which Miss Leneve disguised herself on her flight to Quebec with Crippen. Long said that he bought the suit on Crippen's orders. The suit was exhibited in court and Long easily identified it. "Crippen seemed greatly worried when he appeared at the office July 9," Long said.

"He explained that his worry was due to a scandal in which he was involved but he did not tell me what it was. He sent me out to buy the suit but I did not know what it was to be used for.

TAWNEY'S DEFEAT A GREAT VICTORY

Winonan was One of the Most Powerful Allies of the Standpat Element

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21.— In the defeat of Representative Tawney of Minnesota the regulars lose a strong arm in the house. Progressives and conservationists today hailed his downfall as one of their most important victories in the com-paign.

Tawney's exit will make vacant the place of greatest power, next to that of the speaker in the house.
As chairman of the committee on appropriations he had charge of the disposition of hundreds of millions of dollars annually. For many items the appropriating of money or the withholding of it depended entirely on whether Tawney said "yes" or "no." This gave him great influence among the members, nearly all of whom were obliged to go to him for favors.

Tariff and conservation brought Tawney to his fall. He joined the Cannon forces when the speaker appointed him chairman of the appropriating committee five years ago and carried his loyalty to Cannon to the point of sacrificing his seat in congress. As a regular Tawney felt bound to support the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill which was unpopular in Minnesota.

Forecasted Own Defeat
He was the only member of the delegation from his state to vote for the bill and he then predicted it would probably beat him for re-nomination. Friends of conservation were intensely bitter against Tawney. As chairman of the appropriations committee he abolished Roosevelt's conservation committee and in other ways interfered with the conservation movement. Pinchot stumped the district to defeat him and influence of the former chief fore-ster's friends were brought into the fight. They planned to oppose him in the election if he had been renominated. Tawney is serving his eleventh term in congress.

In case of the next house being republican, Smith of Iowa, may be made chairman of the appropriations committee although he is out ranked by Gillett of Massachusetts. With a democratic house Congressman Fitzgerald of Brooklyn is said to be almost certain to get the chairmanship.

you are over there. The water is clear as crystal, a beautiful blue.
The plan I suggest would give com-mercially pure water, and the equip-
the sum called for by the administration plans.

alysis.

"Many well informed citizens agree
with me that this is the logical so-
vestigate it would be inexpensive.
Mr. Goodwin told me he would make

cian were required to quiet her

neve's arrival was so great that
unnoticed.

Miss M. L. Curnow, who succeeded Crippen as manager of a patent medicine house testified that she

WORK IS STARTED ON INTAKE PIPE

Board of Public Works Is Following Instructions Given by Water Committee

Bright and early this morning the board of public works began work on extending the intake pipe a distance of 100 feet into the Mississippi river, following the instructions of the committee on water, which held a meeting last evening to consider the matter. By this extension it is believed a better water supply may be obtained, thus relieving the present conditions.

Following the agitation that has been going on with reference to the present water conditions, a special meeting of the water committee was called in the mayor's office last evening. It was decided to make the extension of the intake pipe as stated, without regard to expense and the action of the committee will be ratified at a special meeting of the common council this evening.

Five propositions submitted by City Engineer Bradish were considered by the committee, a difference in the cost of the propositions, varying from $200 to $800. No definite estimate of what the extension would cost could be made, under any of the propositions, owing to the uncertainty of the condition of the bed of the river. Because of the present bad condition of the water the board was instructed to go to work this morning without further delay.

James T. Day when seen today, said that a force of men was put on the work of extending the intake pipe early this morning and it will be pushed as rapidly as possible. He said he expected the job would be completed in three or four days when a better supply of water will be flowing through the water mains of the city.

Mayor Sorensen announced today that the suggestion made by Mr.
Frank E. Smith, in The Tribune, that the 24 inch pipe be connected with big well, will be followed as soon as the valves can be secured from Chicago.

Owing to a leak in the pipe, President Day has not dared to stop the big pump and use the small ones.
To do so would make it impossible to again start the big pump, at this stage of water, in case of fire.

DUNN LECTURES ON NEW BALLOT

Moncena Dunn, originator of the coupon ballot, which is to be used at the November election, will lecture on the subject of "Confidence in the Ballot," at Judge Brindley's court room in the court house Friday evening, September 23. He is desirous of having election officers, party committeemen, candidates for office and all others who may wish to, attend.
An explanation of the workings of the ballot and the new tally sheets will be made so clear that "a man that runs may read."

To the Voters of the 7th Congressional District:

Congressman Esch voted to allow Speaker Cannon to appoint the committee to investigate Secretary Ballinger. In other words he voted with the Cannon organization to adopt a plan that meant a whitewashing for Ballinger.

This plan was strongly opposed by genuine progressive congressmen.

TO GET THOUSAND MEMBERS BY OCT. 1

This Is the Mark Set by the Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association

CAMPAIGN TO BEGIN TODAY

One Hundred Men and Boys at Work for 1,000 Men and Boys for Next Ten Days

One thousand members by October 1.

The Young Men's Christian association will inaugurate a campaign beginning September 21 and continuing for ten days during which time it is proposed to reach the 1000 membership mark. One hundred men and boys will work for the new members, according to the plans that have been outlined by the several classes. The following is what the workers expect to accomplish by October 1:

Sustaining members ..... 50 Business men ..... 100 Senior members ..... 450 Special members ..... 100 Intermediate members ..... 1,000 Junior members ..... 200

Total ..... 1,000

Six O'clock Dinner

Last evening a 6 o'clock dinner was held at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, which was attended by about 75 business men and members of the association. After a fine spread Secretary Gran addressed the men, giving an outline of the plan to increase the membership of the association. He said the finance committee held a meeting and prepared a budget for next year's expenses. The report for the year ending September 1 shows that the receipts of the association were $11,232.60, while the expenditures were $11,627.46, leaving a deficit of $394.86. The budget calls for $13,500 for next year and in order to raise this amount it will be necessary to increase the membership from 791 to 1,000. Mr. Gran said this was the lowest possible figure upon which the association can be maintained next year.

All Memberships Expire

The La Crosse Y. M. C. A. is trying a new plan which has never been used by any other association in the United States and that is to have all memberships expire at one time. On October 1 every membership in the organization will expire. Mr. Gran said the association is on trial before the entire United States and if the plan works out all right it may be adopted in other cities.

SAYS AMERICA WILL LEAD PARIS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—"Fifth avenue is to succeed the Rue de la Paix as the fashion center of the sartorial world."

This statement was made today by no less authority than C. Poynter Redfern, the male modiste of London, Paris and New York, as he sailed for the French capital today. Redfern, who was one of the first leaders to acknowledge the smartness in dress of the fashionable American woman has never before gone so far as to state that the time was at hand when she would outclass her French sister. Upon sailing he admitted that he was carrying back to Paris many ideas for gowns obtained during evenings spent in the fashionable restaurants and in the theaters here.

"I fully realize how revolutionary the statement is," said Redfern as he stood aboard the Kron Prinzessin Cecilie, "but I venture these predictions that in another decade New York will furnish Paris and the European capitals with more new woman's fashions than are brought to this country now from the French capital."

ODD FELLOWS ELECT THEIR OFFICERS

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 21.—The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows took up the election of officers. The slate follows: Grand sire—John B. Cockrum of Indianapolis, Ind.
Grand secretary—John B. Goodwin of Baltimore.
Grand treasurer—M. R. Muckle of Philadelphia.

A hot roast for so-called subordinate organizations pretending to be founded on Odd Fellowship was delivered by retiring Grand Sire Kuykendall of Wyoming.

He declared that any Odd Fellow who would join any of these orders should be expelled.

MORIBID CROWDS AT CRIPPEN AUCTION

LONDON, Sept. 21.—London's morbid curiosity in the Dr. H. H. Crippen case resulted in a scramble to buy the doctor's furniture and effects which were auctioned here at a West End sales room. Old catalogues and paper of absolutely no intrinsic value were sold for as high as $2. Odds and ends of the most trifling value were rarely sold for less than $1.

A number of fashionable women crowded the auction rooms and out-bid the curio dealers on many articles. Trifles sold more readily than the larger articles, the chief desire of the people apparently being merely to possess something that belonged to the man accused of murdering his wife.

PAPERS DEFEND MOTION PICTURES

The moving picture industry appears to be peculiarly subject to the domineering supervision of volunteer moralists. In New York we have a "board of censors," to whom the manufacturers of animated films seem to have yielded without so much as a protest, since they do not issue to customers any pictures of which the censors disapprove. Out Missouri way there is a body of amateur cleaners of human pastimes who have ordained that the pictures fit for publicity must not reproduce elopements or even kissing other than by relatives. Doubtless the attitude of these extremists is due to former recklessness on the part of exhibitors in showing pictures of criminal exploits calculated to arouse in immature minds the spirit of emulation, thus creating a new class of offenders. But the doings of the past, however mistaken, are no excuse for the recent proceedings of banded zealots who perceive a monster in every shadow and detect crime in most innocent diversions.

"Motion picture men will doubtless feel grateful to the New York paper for its well meant defense of our principles," said Manager MacWilliams of the Bijou. "But while we are not acquainted with the Missouri puritans mentioned, we feel rather inclined to resent the implication that the New York board of censors is an arbitrary body of zealots whose pleasure it is to domineer over the helpless producers of picture film."

"The national board of censorship is doing a splendid work, and that its strict supervision is no longer necessary is largely due to the educational influence of its former decisions. Our army and navy are not strictly necessary to our happiness and prosperity at present; but they are mighty convenient things to fall back upon in case of argument. The censor board has saved the motion picture a lot of persecution from the bombastic authorities of smaller places than New York, because they cannot but respect the personnel of the eastern body."

"The first sentence of the Review's editorial is peculiarly true; but it is not from the accredited censors that the 'domineering supervision' comes."

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN AT BIJOU TONIGHT

A few weeks ago patrons of the Bijou were entertained by motion pictures of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

The pictures were shown in three reels, one reel being shown each evening. Manager McWilliams has, after considerable trouble and expense, booked all three reels for today and the beautiful and pathetic story will be shown in its entirety, a both afternoon and evening performances.

The Vitagraph Company of America, has surpassed themselves in the production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The company was moved from place to place through the territory covered by the play in order that the scenic properties might be correct. A remarkable feature of these pictures is that very few of the scenes are taken in a stage setting. Every detail of sensationalism has been omitted and every detail of striking truthfulness has been brought out, so that audiences may be assured of a forceful, entertaining presentation of the most remarkable story of its kind.

The Personal Favor

Mark Twain always took a keen delight in scoring off pomposity. While dining in a restaurant one day he sat next table to a couple of airy young men who were giving the waiter an unusual amount of trouble. One of them gave an order, and then, in a commanding voice, asked the waiter to tell the cook whom it was for, the other followed suit. Presently came Twain's chance, and he directed the waiter, in a loud voice to "Bring in a dozen oysters, and whisper my name to each of them to be sure it's all right."—Buffalo Commercial.

fall. James Bright, secretary of the Horse Fanciers' association, announced today that a lack of support causes the organization to pass up the event in which easterners and westerners have joined in exhibiting their stock.

They were very young and very happy, and very foolish, and very newly wed.

And they kept a kitchen garden. "Angelina, darling," said the youthful husband, "as I was passing through the garden I saw some asparagus ready for cooking. Perhaps you'd like to go and gather the first fruit of the season yourself?"

She would love to, but she wasn't expert in horticulture and didn't want to "let on." If she went alone, she might commit some egregious blunder.

"I tell you what, Edwin," exclaimed the girl wife enthusiastically, "we'll go out together. You shall pluck it, and I will hold the ladder!"—Answers.

LOOK TO CUBS NOW

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—With the White Sox having given the New York Yankees the trouncing which enabled the Athletics to clinch the pennant Chicago baseball fans turned to their dope sheets today to figure on the possibility of the Cubs nailing the pennant soon.

According to the dope the Cubs should end the race this week. With 22 games to be played, Chance's men need eight more victories. If the Giants should win all of their remaining 19 games, the Cubs will win out.

AVIATOR INSANE

PARIS, Sept. 21.—The mind of Aviator De Baeder is believed today to be permanently impaired as a result of injuries he sustained several weeks ago in the fall of his aeroplane at Cambria. De Baeder was removed from the hospital today by his mother. He is unable to recognize his friends.

STALLINGS IN ROW WITH F. FARRELL

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—Trouble which has been brewing between Manager Geo. Stallings of the New York Americans and his star first baseman, Hal Chase, culminated today when Stallings left for New York to tell his troubles to his boss, Frank Farrell. Farrell will have a knotty brand of trouble to untangle. He must either release Chase, suspend or fine him or accept the resignation of Stallings. Stallings, who has the sympathy of most of the members of his team, will issue an ultimatum to Farrell and will demand that Chase be punished. Well founded reports have it that Chase will be the manager of the team next year, and it is said that Stallings knows of this and has asserted that Chase was loafing on the job and has lost several games for him so that his season's record would be hard to improve next season.

PACKEY TAKES A CRACK AT WOLGAST

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—If Packey McFarland, the Chicago lightweight, could hit Champion Ad Wolgast as hard in the ring as he does in an interview given out here today it would take him less than a round to lift the title from the Milwaukee scrapper.

McFarland began training in Westchester today for his ten round bout with "Fighting Dick" Hyland Tuesday night. "Wolgast doesn't want to fight anyone that has even an outside chance to whip him," McFarland said. "He is going to hold on to his title by picking the easy ones and laying down impossible conditions for the dangerous men in his class. Jack Goodman, Paul Moore, Hyland and Tommy Murphy and myself have all tried to get a match with him, but he's too slippery. He says he will fight me if I make 133 pounds three hours before the fight. I can't come within two pounds of this and he knows it. At 135 pounds, however, I'll fight him and knock him out in fifteen rounds."

NELSON TO CLAIM THE CHAMPIONSHIP

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Although admitting that there is a technical flaw in his title, "Fighting Dick" Nelson declared today that he will hereafter bill himself as the "welterweight champion" as the result of his victory Monday night over the "Dixie Kid," the title holder.

FIRST WIFE OF CHANLER BUSY

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Advice received here today from Paris say that Mrs. Julia Winthrop Chanler, first wife of Robert W. Chanler, has instructed her legal representative in New York to bring suit immediately to set aside the ante-nuptial agreement that Chanler entered into with Lina Cavallieri which gave up to the singer practically all of his property and bound himself to give her an annuity of $20,000.

The first Mrs. Chanler is entitled by the terms of her divorce to $20,000 a year from Chanler, and she is taking this action to protect the rights of herself and her two daughters, the children of Chanler.

TEE OFF IN FINALS

MANCHESTER, Mass., Sept. 21.—Yale and Princeton, winners over Harvard and Dartmouth in the intercollegiate golf tourney here, teed off early today in the finals of the series. Yale is picked as the probable winner. Excellent weather today is expected to result in splendid scores.

STARTS GREAT WALK

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 21.—O'Leary the famous old pedestrian has arranged a novel test of walking powers and endurance, the incentive being a purse of $250. O'Leary will attempt to walk from the state house in Boston to the city hall in New York in seventy-two hours without any sleep or rest of any kind. O'Leary will start Wednesday morning Oct. 4.

NEW YORK FIGHT TO BE VERY CLOSE

Both Roosevelt and "Old Guard" will Have to Depend on "Unknown Vote"

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—It will require the official count of the delegates to determine if Vice-president James S. Sherman, or Col. Theodore Roosevelt will be the temporary chairman of the republican state convention which meets in Saratoga next Tuesday at noon. This was made certain today when a compilation of the list of delegates was possible following the final upstate primaries of yesterday. There is unlikely to be a majority of more than ten or fifteen either way despite the confident claims made by both managers today. William Barnes, Jr., leader of the "old guard" claims a majority of fifty-five for Sherman while his opponent, Lloyd C. Griscom, insists that Roosevelt will have a majority of not less than seventy.

"Old Guard" is Short
A careful analysis of the figures compiled by both camps indicates that the old guard can count absolutely on but 492 delegates. It requires 505 to control the convention and it will be necessary for the anti-Roosevelt combine to make up the sixteen needed delegates from the doubtful list. Roosevelt cannot figure on more than 476 delegates to stick to him to the very limit but his friends claim that when the line up comes they will still get the delegates they need. The real fight is to come in the committee on resolutions. Roosevelt has the backing for the chairmanship of a number of delegates who are inalterably opposed to his direct primary proposal. The colonel will be a committee member of the committee on resolutions. So will Griscom, Congressman Sloan, Fasset and Postmaster Greiner of Buffalo and these are the men who will fight for the direct nominations plan. They will be opposed by James Wadsworth, Jr., Wm. Barnes, Jr., and their lieutenants. The primaries yesterday resulted as expected with the exception of Fox, Oneida county, the home of Vice-president Sherman. The leader was confronted by the strongest opposition he has ever had with the result he was defeated not alone in his own ward but in the whole assembly district which he has controlled ever since his entry into politics.

CAMERON BALDWIN MAKES STATEMENT

To the Editor of the La Crosse Tribune:

I wish to confirm the statement made by myself when I announced my candidacy as an independent progressive republican for election to congress from the Seventh district of Wisconsin to succeed Hon. John J. Esch. I did not consult with the leaders of any political organization, but I did consult the wishes and sentiments of many voters throughout the Seventh district, and since my announcement I have received many communications from various parts of the Seventh district congratulating me on the stand I have taken and offering me support. The progressive leaders in La Crosse are as deeply interested in the principles of progressive republicanism as I am and my action can in no way embarrass them. I am sure that they must feel that this district should not be represented in congress by a man who has lined up with the Cannon organization, but by a progressive, who would feel it practicable as well as his duty to reflect in his actions in congress, the sentiments of the voters who sent him there.

That Congressman Esch's speech at Wannebo hall in which he cleverly put the stamp of his approval on the career of Robert La Follette, did in any way change his attitude toward the progressive movement must be denied when one considers his reply to a request from Sidney Anderson to speak in his behalf in Minnesota against Congressman Tawney. Replying to this request Congressman Esch stated that he could not go to Minnesota because of previous engagements and further that he did not think it would be fair for him to go and speak against Tawney because Tawney had assisted him in getting the Sparta rifle range for this district, and also getting a share of the river and harbor bills appropriation for certain improvements along the Mississippi river.

There are only a few voters in this or any other district whose supreme interest in politics pertains to what may go into or come out of the "national pork barrel." The great majority of voters in this or any other district are vitally interested in the quality of representation with which they are served by their congressman, and the voters of this district and every other district that I ever heard of are now and always have been interested in electing a man, who would feel it his duty to consider the wishes and interests of the people of vital importance when voting on any measure.

When Senator Cummins came to La Crosse to speak in behalf of political principles, which we know now a great majority of the voters of this state believe in, Congressman Esch for reasons which he has never explained, did not meet Senator Cummins, either before or after the meeting. Had he been deeply interested in the progressive movement, and in the principles that have made that movement successful, he most certainly would have found time to at least offer the hand of good fellowship to a brother worker in the cause.

I will call your attention to the following items taken from Congressman Esch's record in the last session of congress:

1. He voted with the Cannon organization to allow Speaker Cannon to appoint the Ballinger investigating committee.

2. He voted for the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill.

Does this record reflect the sentiments of a progressive constituency? I am sure that it does not, and I wish to assure you again that I will run as an independent progressive republican for election to congress from the Seventh district of the state of Wisconsin, because if I do not, progressive republican voters in this district will have no one for whom they can conscientiously vote.

Respectfully,
CAMERON L. BALDWIN.
La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 21, 1910.

JOE CANNON HURLS DEFIANCE AT ENEMIES

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 21.—"I have no defense to make of the Payne tariff law for it needs none. It is the enactment of the pledges made by the republican convention of 1908. It is in keeping with the policy of protection which the republican party has maintained as the correct revenue policy ever since the election of Abraham Lincoln; in fact it is in harmony with the very first revenue legislation of the first congress under the administration of Washington."

Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, in a letter to his congressional convention, today accepted his 20th nomination as a representative thus hurling defiance at the insurgents and democrats who have attacked the tariff law. As leader of the stand-patters in congress, Cannon made it clear that he will continue to stand pat.

The speaker's letter deals exhaustively with commercial and industrial conditions in the country in support of his contention that only by such a tariff as is now in vogue "can the country's industries be protected, prosperity assured and money raised to conduct the government."

Says Democrats Failed
"The democratic tariff failed to produce sufficient revenue," said the speaker. "More than that it was either directly or indirectly responsible for the depression of business which resulted in commercial failures amounting to more than one billion dollars in the four years of Cleveland's administration."

"My notion about progress is that it should be a movement forward, not simply a loud noise about the necessity for the movement nor an extravagant promise to accelerate the movement if given control of the machine."

"Since the repeal of the Wilson tariff law our whole production, both of agricultural and manufactures has doubled in value, our national wealth—which is nothing more than the accumulation from the savings of labor—has increased; our railroads have added 60,000 miles since 1895 and their employees have doubled in number."

The annual earnings of these employees have increased from $447,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

"How Else to Raise Money
"We have the results and proof of the pudding is in the eating. I want to express my conviction that this is to be a campaign for serious consideration of the one national policy which touches every man in the country."

"That is the question as to how we are to raise one billion dollars a year for the expenses of the various functions that have been upon the federal treasury, not one party or one section of the country but by the whole people in agitation for the development of agriculture, the regulation of roads, the inspection of mines, improvement of rivers and harbors, the care of the national forests, the reclamation of arid lands."

The speaker declared that the nation to place new burdens on federal government increases rather than diminishes.

A merciful man is merciful to his chauffeur.

A SPECIFIC BLOOD IMPURIFIER

Catarrh is a deep-seated blood disease, one which no amount of treatment will ever permanently cure. The beneficial effects of Catarrh, sprays, inhalations, etc., are only temporary, and when left off the condition returns, because the blood is infected with catarrhal matter, impurities. This impure condition of the circulation irritates and inflames the delicate mucous membranes and tissues and produces well known symptoms of ring noises in the head and ears, much the throat, headaches, watery eyes, partial deafness, sore throat, general impairment of health, etc. This condition will remain, growing worse long as the catarrhal matter is allowed to remain in the blood. A specific blood impurity, there is one way to cure Catarrh, and that is to purify the blood. Nothing else S.S.S. for this purpose. It attacks the disease at its head—in the circulation—and by thoroughly removing the blood cleansing it, it makes a permanent and lasting cure of the disease. For years S.S.S. has been recognized as the best blood purifier, and the thousands of cases Catarrh it has cured is proof that the very medicine needed by those who suffer with this trouble. Buy Catarrh and any medical advice.
